Austrian Republic Facing Crisis On Rights Of States

VIENNA, Dec. 22.—The Austrian republic is passing through a "state's rights" crisis very similar to that which marked an earlier stage of the American republic. Provinces are demanding a high degree of independence from the central government, and in some of them, such as the Tyrol and Upper Austria and Styria, it amounts almost to complete autonomy. If their demands are eventually granted about the only thing that would be left to the central government would be foreign relations and the regulations of foreign import and export traffic and limited taxation.

This was contingent, he said, on whether congress includes an item of $3,000,000 for ship repair work in the next deficiency bill, as recommended by him.

Doran, 726 Neptune street; Hugh Gee, 726 Neptune street, and Jake Sossman, 530 Polk avenue, had been held up by a negro in woman's clothing. Emergency Police Officer Robinson and Officer made a search of the neighborhood, failed to find anyone, and had returned to their car when they spotted a negro coming down Walnut street.

They called to him to halt. He fled into an alley. Robinson pursued, and soon saw the negro emerge from beneath a house. Ordered again to halt, the negro fled through the alley. Robinson emptied his pistol at the fleeing black man, but failed to halt him. Then the policeman pursued on foot, and overtook the negro.</
